ACG Atlanta Hires New Executive Director to Lead the Chapter

ATLANTA – The Atlanta chapter of ACG – the premier global merger and acquisition dealmaking network association – is excited to announce the hiring of Meg Williams as its new Executive Director.

Williams began her new role on January 3rd and will work alongside Gloria Kantor (VP of Operations for Atlanta and the Southeast region) to continue the growth of the ACG Atlanta chapter and oversee day-to-day operations.

Williams has had a diverse career including Marketing, Sales, Hospitality, HR, Management, and Event Planning. She comes to ACG after 9 years at Peachtree Church, one of the largest Presbyterian churches in the world, with over 7,000 members.

Meg attended Georgia Tech, where she earned a BS in Business and Certificates in Marketing as well as Industrial/Organizational Psychology.

“After conducting a comprehensive search, we are thrilled to have found Meg. The depth and breadth of her experience made her a great fit with our organization,” said Debra Michie, CEO of the Southeast region of ACG. “She has a demonstrated track record and a ‘can do’ attitude that will greatly benefit ACG.”

“Meg brings a wealth of experiences, relationship-building, and talent to the Executive Director role,” said Steve Tye, ACG Atlanta Board Chairman and Managing Director of Atlanta-based investment banking firm Croft & Bender LP. “We are looking forward to working with her as we continue to bring value-added networking and programming to the middle market deal-making community in Atlanta and beyond.”
