Andrea Azzolina
Freeman Clarke

Andrea has more than 20 years of experience building and leading business operations and technology teams across a broad range of industries including healthcare, higher education, government, and fortune 500 companies. Andi has expertise in transformational data and analytics platforms, systems integration, automation, eCommerce, customer data platforms and cybersecurity.

She formerly served as CIO of the Community Preservation Corporation, a community development financial institution, and led several global technology teams at JetBlue Airways including Software and Data Engineering, Enterprise Architecture, and IT Security.

Holds a B.A., in Psychology from American University, an MBA, from the University of Baltimore and an M.S., in Cybersecurity Risk and Strategy from New York University.