Berkshire Mountain Distillers Berkshire Bourbon

Massachusetts

This bourbon has a very light nose. There's caramel, spice, and alcohol there, but none of it is overly assertive. In the mouth, it's mellow, maybe a bit muddled, with toffee, oak, pepper, and even a brief appearance of banana. The finish is very short and gets spicy.

BOURBON TASTING

Western Spirits Bird Dog Bourbon

Kentucky

Citrus and currant notes lead off the front. There's a slight cereal grain and earthy undertone that leads into a short, not particularly memorable floral and spice finish. The palate indicates that the dog's stay in the barrel was a relatively short one.

BOURBON TASTING

StilltheOne Distillery 914

New York

This Bourbon is made with New York State-grown wheat and corn, and the nose has notes of straw, cut grass, flowers, honey, orange peel, and vanilla. The taste has good spices along with honey, orange marmalade, and vanilla in a nice balance. The finish is long-lasting with softly fading spices and hints of chocolate and orange.

Four Roses Small Batch Straight Bourbon Kentucky

The mouthfeel is nice and creamy. A dimension of flavors offers enough to create interest, and they manage to keep one another in check. While the flavors are all a bit timid, oak, summer fruit, cherries, caramel, and rye spice are the most prominent.

Mitcher's Distillery Small Batch Bourbon Kentucky

The palate can best be summed up as sweet with good mouthfeel. Sweet corn, honey, and vanilla are immediately noticeable when you take a sip. The palate comes off as that of a young whiskey that hasn't spent a lot of time in the barrel.

BOURBON TASTING

Willett Small Batch Bourbon Kentucky

The front of the palate reflects the nose with warm spice notes of cinnamon, mint, and allspice that blend with barrel notes of seasoned oak, toasted pecan, and burned sugar. In the mid-palate, the spice notes subside, and the bourbon takes on more barrel flavor characteristics with soft notes of cream, caramel, and slightly bitter toasted pecan notes.

Angel's Envy Bourbon Kentucky

Angel's Envy has one of the most sensual bouquets ever nosed on a bourbon. Soft, gentle, and with aromas of warm caramels, maple candy, satsumas, brown sugar, and praline, the bouquet is a study in subtle complexities. The port influence is most evident here, providing solid flavors of walnut and oak, orange marmalade, fresh mint, and Seville orange. It's a long, lingering, and utterly delicious finish.

Sazerac's Barton 1792

Kentucky

The first impression is sweetness on the tip of the tongue, starting with caramel and melting into vanilla as it makes its way through the mouth. But the rye jumps out again mid-palate, bringing heavy spice, some spearmint, some mild orange peel and lemon zest, and then is followed up with a healthy dose of oak and barrel flavors.
